It Was Christmas Eve

By Lily Rutherford Morris

GEORGE HARDMAN left the train hesitatingly as it stopped at the old familiar station. His firm was sending him South on business, and as he approached Helburn, where he had so long worked and loved and lost, he found himself unable to resist the temptation to stop off for the night, just to give the old place the once over again.

Three years before he had left suddenly, when the rumor of Dora Dean's engagement to Andrew Clews reached his ears. There had been some trouble at the bank where he worked—a wrong use of funds. George's name was at first connected with it, and many of his old-time friends looked askance at him, though he held his head high in his conscious innocence, and probably would have remained until all was cleared up, had it not been for Dora. He could not stand the loss of Dora. She, too, must think him guilty, or she would not be turning away from him now, when he most needed her staunch friendship. Andrew Clews had, for years, been his chief rival, and now, because of this false report, he had won from him the only woman he had ever truly loved.

It was Christmas eve, and Helburn had done herself proud in the way of holiday decoration. Everything everywhere glowed in various colored lights, holly wreaths, candles and Christmas bells. On the courthouse square a community tree stood bling, and on building steps church choirs were singing merry Christmas carols.

George left his grip at a corner drug store, and creeling around the crowd which had congregated on the street, stepped behind an evergreen on the square and dropped down on a bench to watch and listen. Presently a hand fell on his shoulder, and he looked up into the smiling face of Dora Dean.

"George!"

He was on his feet instantly.

"Dora!"

"Oh, George, why did you run off so abruptly? I've tried every way to find you."

"Why should you wish to find me, Dora? Are you not Mrs. Clews?"

"No! A thousand times no! Andrew started that report, and you can't care enough for the truth to come to me for it."

"Dora, do forgive me! I acted the fool, of course. I should have learned the truth from you; but I was so hurt, so hurt, Dora."

"That report of our engagement was as false as was the report circulated against you, George. But I believed in you. And you—"

"Oh, Dora, dear, please don't remind me of my folly. I am miserable as it is. Is it too late, Dora, to take up things where we left off? I do want you for my wife. I could never love anyone else."

Dora's head went to George's shoulder as he embraced her tenderly and whispered: "How about making it a Christmas day celebration?"

A New Story of the First Christmas Tree

BY Florence Harris Wells

A LITTLE boy slipped his hand into the hand of Christ on His way to the cross and the Man of Galilee was comforted, for He loved little children, you remember.

He asked the little boy if he would do something for Him, telling the child that it was something for all children, for all time, He wanted him to do.

All eagerness, the little fellow gladly agreed; and then Jesus knelt and whispered to him. Immediately the little hand waved a hurried good-by and the boy turned and ran out of the city. On he went until he entered a dense wood. Soon the sound of axes came to his ears and he followed in the direction from whence came the sound.

Through the trees he saw soldiers chopping into a great tree. He sat down and waited. Chips flew. The tree wavered and fell. The men quickly cut off the branches, leaving the trunk naked and bare; then they selected a smaller tree and deftly felled that.

As the little tree fell the child cautiously snatched something from the topmost branch and then the soldiers stripped the little tree bare. Silently they bound it crosswise to the big tree and dragged it out of the wood, never noticing the little boy when he followed.

Up the hills to Golgotha went the little boy and because he was so little and had walked so far he fell asleep. He awakened and saw friends take from the cross the body of the Master, wrap it in linen and carry it away.

No one saw the little boy, so silent and so quiet as he went about his task. He knelt and opened his clenched hand above the hole in the ground where the cross had stood and sifted loose earth until the hole was filled, patting the place gently.

Every day for a long time the boy brought a jar of water up the hill.

The first tiny, green shoot had grown into a small tree and the child was no longer a child; on the twenty-fifth of December he called all the children of the city to follow him to Golgotha.

"Listen, children," he said. "This is Christ's tree. The seed was taken from the tree from which His cross was made. He said the leaves would be like thorns, only soft and harmless, and each twig would be formed into a cross, and it is even so. It is your tree, given you for Christ's birthday. Christ's tree for Christmas day—the Christmas tree."

Record Freight Train.

What is thought to be the longest freight train ever operated was one over the Virginia railroad from Victoria, Va., to Roanoke, Va., a distance of 123 miles. The train consisted of 180 empty coal cars, eight empty box cars, two cars of gasoline, one of steel and one of asphalt. The locomotive was 2-10-10-2 mallet type and is used in handling trains of 125 to 160 loaded cars.

Life Blood's Journey.

Assuming the heart to beat 60 times a minute at ordinary heart pressure, the blood courses through the veins at the rate of 207 yards to a minute, or seven miles an hour, 168 miles a day and 61,320 miles a year. If a man eighty-four years of age could have had one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life it would have traveled in that time near by 5,150,000 miles.

"Taps."

The words to "Taps" are: "Love, good night, West thou go. When the day And the night Need thee so. All is well. Speedeth all To their rest. Fades the light. And afar Goeth day And the Stars Shinet bright. Fare thee well. Day has gone, Night is on."

SANTA WAS HERE

Born on Christmas Day

In Ireland it is believed that the baby boys born on Christmas day are thereby destined to become priests. Beyond that, those born on Christmas day were believed to have the power of "healing" by the laying on of hands, and to be gifted with "second sight."—Montreal Herald.

January 6 as Christmas Day

Recent investigators incline to the belief that in fixing January 6 as Christmas day, the early Christians were not very far out, for January 11 would seem to be the correct day.—Montreal Herald.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

CHRISTMAS trees, as a family, are the oldest of all trees. Scientists say that their direct ancestors were the first flowering plants on earth. They are believed to have originated during a period of very severe climate, their needlelike leaves presenting less surface to cold and exposure than the broad-leaved trees that evolved in later periods of the earth's history.

Perfect World.

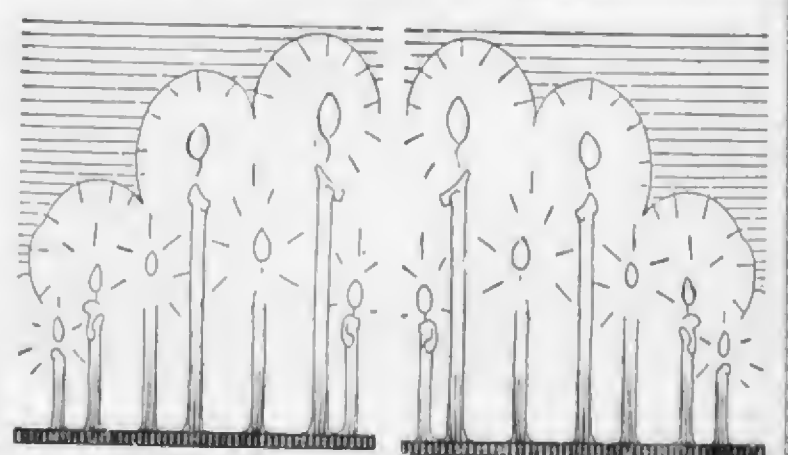

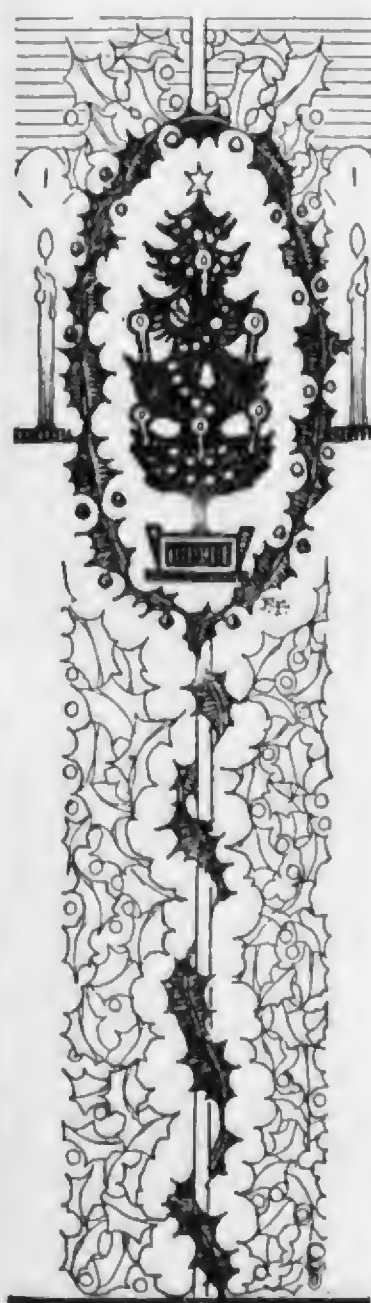

The world won't be perfect until some one invents a foolproof automobile, a rain proof pants crease and a wind proof sailor straw.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Love and Food.

It is an erroneous belief that those in love lose their appetite. All emotions increase the appetite. There is a greater call on the glands with consequent demand for more food.

Indians Didn't Skate.

Skating does not appear to have been known in North America before its colonization by Europeans, though bone slides were used to a limited extent by certain Eskimo tribes.

Order Christmas Greeting Cards Now!

Greatest Line of Engraved and Lithographed Cards Now Ready at Antioch News Office.

The assortment is a varied one—featuring the works of some of the best Greeting Card artists in the country. You will marvel at the beautiful blending of the colors, the softness and the delicateness of the tints, the richness of the deeper ones, the brilliancy of the bright cherry Christmas colors. The printing of your name in harmonizing type will add just the distinctive touch that you are seeking. And the cost of the cards, including the printing of your name, is usually less than you would have to pay for cards alone, if purchased elsewhere.

For Business Firms

The business greeting idea is becoming more and more popular each year. Business today is not a cold-blooded proposition. The most successful firms are those which are the most human—those which have succeeded most in making friends out of their customers. And what could create a warmer, more friendly feeling than a warm, cordial greeting or message of appreciation at Christmas time?

THE ANTIOCH NEWS

The Christmas Glow

By M. T. SUDDITH, in New York Times

THERE'S a glow in the air, a stir in the street, That comes but once in a year, There's a tone in the voice of friends you greet That echoes of hope and cheer, And the feet-footed days hasten on to the time When, glowing in dawn's skies, The gladdest of days and most sublime, The Christmas morn shall rise.

Each shop and each store of the throng-filled mart Its choicest treasures displays And each to the brightness adds its part Of the greatest of all the year's days, And the eager crowds as they move along A festive scene supply.

For joy in each heart is pulsing strong, The joy of Christmas night In the windows the holly wreaths of green With berries red appear, And even the air seems more serene As though it were listening to hear That wondrous oratorio On that first Christmas night, As angels sang in the long ago When Bethlehem's star shone bright.

A STRONG WILL

She—Why so backward? I saw you kiss Miss Hasbeen under the mistletoe.
He—I promised my dance I'd kiss only homely girls on Christmas eve.

Medieval Carols

One of the earliest medieval carols still in existence is preserved in the British museum. It is written in Norman-French and dates from the Thirteenth century.

The Word "Carol"

The word "carol" was originally applied to ring dances of children, as compounded by singing. In time the word came to denote a lively time suggestive of dancing. Christmas was universally recognized as a time for merry as well as religious songs and so in the carols sung at this season religious facts were alluded to in simple phrases and sung to merry dancing tunes.

In Safe Keeping

"Are you fond of toffee?" asked the little mite of a lady who was assisting at Christmas party.
"No thank you, my dear."
"Then will you look after this for me, please?"—Montreal Herald.

Burning Yule Log

The custom of burning the Yule log on Christmas eve is not prevalent in England. The custom is still followed in some of the rural sections. It is more prevalent in the Scandinavian countries.

Gypsies and Christmas

Gypsies credit the Christmas-born with powers of divination, ability to remove the "evil eye" and various other attributes.

AVOID THE SHADOWS

STARVING for the joy of giving—that is perhaps the starkest form of poverty of the Christmas season. To disappoint the children, to bring the shadow of a cloud into small expectant faces—this is tragedy indeed. The restriction of penitence falls heavily upon the world-begiver. It hurts—being kept from the role of Santa Claus. No tin soldiers for the thin little man, no dolls for the little mother, no fine foods with which to feed small stomachs—these are the negatives which scratch the souls of mothers and fathers who are being beaten by Life—Holland's Magazine.

Abbreviating Christmas Spoils Wonderful Word

Clergymen of many of the denominations in New York have joined in a protest against the abbreviation of the word "Christmas." They declare that writing it "Xmas" is irreverent and should not be permitted. It is said that with one exception letters sent out to Christian leaders brought replies in protest against the abbreviated form of using the word. It is not irreverent certainly it is not good taste and spoils the appearance of one of the finest words in the whole language.

The protest is timely for many reasons. There is no occasion for abbreviating the name of Christ. Moreover Christmas is an event that appeals to nearly all, both non-believers as well as believers. It signifies much more than a religious observance. Nearly all the world, non-Christians as well as those who observe the day as the birth of their Lord and Savior, make Christmas the occasion for good deeds. It makes a sort of spiritual revival that affects the people of all faiths and creeds. It is the time when all mankind is drawn closer together; when selfishness is more nearly crucified than at any other period of the year; when men of all beliefs vie with each other in the doing of good deeds. Hearts are softened at this season of the year and acts that at other times would be quickly done are now, for the time being at least, barred by qualms of conscience. The better and finer impulses of mankind, that often during months appear to be submerged by the selfish desires of the flesh, are for a brief period, in the ascendancy.

For all these reasons the word "Christmas" is now come to be one of the holiest and most inspiring in the language. To the devout followers of the lowly Nazarene it is the occasion for the celebration with poems of praise and songs of thanksgiving of the coming of man's redeemer; to the non-Christian it is the time of rejoicing because it proves man's humanity to man. That is why it is the most widely observed of all the "red letter" days in the calendar of time—Nashville, Tennessee.

Going Home For Christmas

Lily Rotherford Morris

HE train sped on its way through the frozen country as if trying desperately to outstrip the furious fall of snow. Russell Hansford put aside his magazine to enjoy the spectacle and to meditate happily on this visit he was making to the old home town. It was the first since leaving abruptly ten years before in answer to the call of a wealthy bachelor uncle who wanted to train him for the management of his profitable business from which he hoped to retire within a few years.

None of the Hansfords now lived there, but Ridgewood, where he had grown to young manhood, would at ways be "home" to Russell. The glamour of business success had not dimmed his ardor for old associations. He loved every foot of ground in and around the town, as well as its inhabitants; but above all things else he treasured the memory of Lucy Miles, the sprightly little dark beauty whom he had loved and played with in childhood and with whom he had gone through the Ridgewood schools.

He had gone away without asking her to go with him as his wife, because his future, at that time, seemed very uncertain. He would get a good start, he planned, then go back for the dear girl. But Russell Hansford tarried too long over the job of getting ready. A strange man had come out of the West to win Lucy's heart, and had placed her beyond his hope. No other girl had ever interested him.

He sighed now as he reflected, and wondered if by any chance she, too, should be going back home for the holidays.

On and on the train dashed, his eager desire keeping pace with it, until suddenly he and all other passengers were thrown violently from their seats. Brakes screamed. All realized that there had been an accident.

An automobile had been struck on a crossing, the way being obscured, no doubt, by the heavy snowfall. The injured were placed aboard the baggage car to be taken to the hospital at Ridgewood, only a few miles farther on.

At the station Russell made haste to lend aid, if possible, to the sufferers, and some one in the crowd was heard to say:

"It is John Miles and his sister, Mrs. Galtstone."

Russell's heart-beats seemed to stop short.

"Lucy!" he murmured to himself. He pushed forward to see. One glance at the upturned face was enough. "Yes, Lucy. And my truth struck her down."

The homecoming meant nothing to him now; nothing unless he could bring comfort to the injured.

At the hospital he waited to learn the state of the patients and was told that John was not seriously hurt, but that Mrs. Galtstone might not recover. She had not regained consciousness.

"Has her husband been notified?" he asked a little later.

"She has no husband," the attendant answered, "he died several years ago."

"Oh," with a catch in his breath, "I did not know she was a widow."

"Her mother is here. She and the boy live alone. Mrs. Galtstone still makes her home with Mr. Galtstone's mother. John was bringing her home for Christmas."

For weeks Lucy Miles Galtstone hovered between life and death. At last there came a change for the better, and one bright sunny morning late in January she was able to see the unknown friend who had kept her room abloom with roses.

"You!" she exclaimed as Russell stepped smilingly into her presence.

"Oh, Russell, so it was you." Tears of happiness filled her eyes as she held out her hand to him.

"Lucy! You don't know how very happy I am that you are getting well. I was on the train that struck you." He was at her side bending upon her as he tenderly stroked her hand resting trustfully within his own.

"I've never forgotten you, Lucy," and his voice choked with emotion.

"Nor I you, Russell."

"My decision to come back to dear old Ridgewood for Christmas was sudden. I feel sure now there must have been a guiding influence."

"And I didn't even know when Christmas came and passed," she said sadly.

"Nor I, scarcely. My mind and heart have been here with you. I shall not wait another day to tell you, Lucy, that I love just as I used to love you in the old days. I believe you loved me, too, then. Could you love me again, dear?"

"Sit down, Russell, and listen. I want you to know that I should never have stopped loving you if you had not gone away as you did. But it won't be hard to start all over again."

Christmas Memories

Christmas means memories of those who were dear to us and who never failed to provide a gift laden Christmas.

Yule Was Pagan Feast

Christmas and Yuletide are said to be in reality two distinct festivals, the latter originally being a pagan feast in honor of the sun gods. It dates back to long before the Christian era. Yuletide was celebrated about December 22, and when the festival of Christmas was instituted on December 25, the name of the older feast gradually became synonymous.—Montreal Herald

Spread Holiday Joy

Holiday decorations spread more cheer if they extend into the yard and garden. A living Christmas tree with gay lights is enjoyed by all the passers-by while sprays of hollyhocks around the sundial, with wreaths over the doors and plenty of cheery window boxes also help to bring holiday cheer.

Singing the Candle Out

There are many curious customs connected with the singing of carols. In the Isle of Man villagers assembled in the church on Christmas eve and, in turn, sang a carol. Each held a lighted candle and, although some of the carols were lengthy, the singer had to stop when the candle went out.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS"

HERE is how the nations of the world say "Merry Christmas":

France—Bon Noel.
Germany—Frohehe Weihnachten.
China—Tin Hao Nian.
Sweden—Glad Julen.
Portugal—Bom Festas.
Italy—Felice Natale.
Japan—Kingu Shinen.
Rumania—Gracian Felicitatiune.

Turkey—Ichok Yllara.
Bohemia—Vesele Vancos.
Hungary—Boldog Karacsont!
Czechoslovakia—Christy Jena.
Poland—Wesołych Swiat.
Croatia—Sretan Bozic.
Denmark—Vrolijkje Kerstmis.
Spain—Felices Pascuas.—Montreal Herald.

Christmas Carols

Christmas carols originated in the Eleventh century, being sung between the scenes of the miracle and mystery plays of that period.

Turpentine Repels Moths.

A little turpentine poured into the corners of the wardrobe will keep the moths away.

SAME THING

"I wouldn't be at all surprised if this Christmas buying wouldn't put us in bed."

"Buying doesn't affect me that way, dear! It's the paying that'll put me on the flat of my back."

Fount of Philosophy.

I have learned more real philosophy hearing ordinary men talk than I have learned from books of philosophy. The talk of the ordinary man is tiresome, but the worst of them occasionally drop a pearl that has been polished by experience.—E. W. Howe

Evergreens

By Clara Agee Hays

IT WAS evening in Joppa. Paul, the weaver, stood in his doorway watching the many-colored sunset. Hester set the last dish upon the uncovered table and called softly: "My husband."

"Paul did not move. Hester touched his arm. "Paul! Behold thy supper. Even now, the potage grows cold."

Presently her husband went to the bench beside the table. He prayed, but he did not eat.

"Was not He, the great Jesus, born on this eve?"

Hester nodded reverently. "So wise men tell us. Do hundred years ago."

Suddenly Paul shook his head. "Four hundred years!" And yet man, do not know, or knowing they will not believe that He was the Anointed One."

"If we but had more courage! Then, we, too, might proclaim Him!" Hester spoke softly.

Paul straightened. "Courage? Do we not give gifts to the poor in this time of the night?"

Hester nodded. "Then now our own gifts are ready to take out with those others who have lost the money. Let us—see how Paul!" "My beloved, there are others besides the poor."

Paul Looked at the Evening Sky.

Even those who mock us and persecute us, how shall they believe if we are not brave?

Paul's eyes were dreamy. "Courage? Brave?" he spoke definitely. "But what can we, who are but weavers, do? I have no wealth. I cannot speak in public synagogues or on corners."

The Christmas Shopper

"Perhaps we could tell the world by a sign."

"A sign? How?"

"Oh, my husband, I am not sure. Something in our dwelling where those who cannot read could understand."

Paul was silent. Then he spoke slowly. "Even though they stone us, yes, my heart, we shall have a sign. Is there not something that will stand for everlasting life, and for the birth of God's son?"

"Why not a tree? It is, itself, alive."

"A tree? But when cold comes, it drops all of its leaves. That is not like."

"My husband! But the cedar tree does not! It is ever green and the same. Could that not well stand for everlasting life?"

Paul looked at the evening sky. "And stars? Do they not stand for the star of the wise men?" he exclaimed happily. "We shall place lights upon our tree, like stars—and our gifts, too! Those who need shall come for them and learn that there is a greater gift of life for them than here."

"But the penalty, my Paul. We shall be stoned!"

Paul's eyes lighted. "Stoned? But we have the gifts of life!"

HINTS FOR CHRISTMAS

If YOU spill salt, throw a pinch over your left shoulder, and ill luck will pass you by.

Always try to have a bit of mistletoe in the house, for it is a luck bringer.

For every kiss you take under the mistletoe a berry must be plucked and when all are plucked the privilege ceases.

If you find a bit of red ribbon or red wool amongst your presents (especially wool), you will have luck in love. Be sure to wear the trifle while you make your wish.

If you want a "Happy Christmas" put more into it than you take out.—Montreal Herald.

Christmas Camouflage

By Myrtle Koon Cherryman

HOW, how am I going to give Jack Bayes a dollar for spending money without spending money without spending his mother's? thought Isabel, as Christmas approached. "Anna is so sensitive, and while she wouldn't mind my sending her boy a book that cost a dollar, I know she would be hurt at my giving money. And there's Mrs. Montgomery—I've always sent her a small plant, but a dollar would be so much better, now that she's in the home, where the board always decorates for holidays, anyway! But would she like it? I'm sure she likes to have a little something in her purse, but she is proud, and—"

Thoughtfully Isabel looked at the crisp dollar bill she was holding, and suddenly it struck her what a really beautiful thing that steel engraving of George Washington was. She took a piece of paper and cut from it an oval about the size of the engraving and then placed it over the picture. It didn't quite fit, but it showed up the portrait effectively, with the lettering on the bill excluded.

Next, she took an envelope, and after some measuring, cut from it, very carefully, an oval at the left side. She scribbled with her pencil for a while, got out her mineral paints, and after fifteen minutes work, she had before her a neat portrait of Washington in a gold frame, at the side of which was lettered:

The Father of His Country for his children should provide.
If you want some little trifle, you need not be denied.
He will get it for you straightway; (You'll find him just inside.)
"There," she said. "That ought to do for Mrs. Montgomery. Now, I'll try the other verse for Jack. If I make a joke of it, Anna will swallow it more easily."

On another small framed substitute, she printed carefully:

If you need some little extra, just go to it!
If you think you can't afford it, let George do it!"

Christmas morning Isabel was rewarded by a note from Mrs. Montgomery, thanking her for her "artistic and ingenious card," and by a phone call from Jack, who said:

"Miss Isabel, you don't know how many little extras I need, and that dollar! Well, mother doesn't like folks to give me money, but she's perfectly willing to let George do it!"

And she knew that her Christmas camouflage had succeeded.

Beautiful Fur.

The black racoon is considered by some to be the most beautiful of all fur bearers. They are quite scarce and good breeding stock is difficult to obtain. Racoon is well known for its wearing qualities, and this fact added to the beauty of the black racoon makes it particularly popular.

Fashion's Changes

In George Washington's day the citizens of the upper class dressed much as he did. Between 1790 and 1800 there occurred a change in the style of garb worn by men. A round hat, short coat, light waistcoat and pantaloons reaching to the ankles and fastened by buttons comprised the attire of a gentleman. The hair was short and unpowdered.

THE BOX THAT GOD WAS IN

By Alice Crowell Hoffman

"DO YOU think, mother, that the Christmas box this year might have a pair of red-topped boots in it?" asked the frontier missionary a little lad earnestly.

"I hope so, dear, but we must be glad for whatever it contains," was the tender and cautious reply.

"But, mother, it's awfully hard to be thankful for old clothes that don't fit," put in the daughter of the household. "How wonderful it would be to pick out what one liked!"

"Do you think I'll get my dolly that talks this year?" questioned wee Dee.

"Hush, children, hush, here comes father with the missionary box now. You must be glad for anything you get," urged mother bravely.

"I Cannot Understand."

Reverend Dalton pried open the lid of the box wondering all the while, as did the rest of his household, why it should be so much smaller than usual.

Mother did her best to prevent her little brood from hurting the kind understanding heart of their father, but, in spite of her best efforts, they blurted out their heart-rending questions:

Do Your Shopping Early

"Are my boots in?" "Is my talking dolly there?"

Reverend Dalton bent low over the box making a pretense of examining its contents more closely, but in reality trying to hide his face.

Finally, there being no further excuse for delay he took out the only thing which the box contained—a large merchandise catalogue.

"I cannot understand; there must be some mistake here," he said, turning over the leaves absentmindedly. As he did so a letter dropped to the floor. Picking it up he read:

"We are sure you are tired of getting old things year after year. We planned to sell at a rummage sale all the cast-off garments usually kept for the box. We got ever so many more things, too, and a big, successful sale, and are sending you a check for $100 to buy the things you most want.

"Because you are away out on the frontier and cannot get to stores we are sending you the merchandise catalogue. With best wishes for the merriest Christmas ever, we are,

"The Girls of the Sunshine Class."

As the missionary and his wife watched the eager happy faces of their children as they did their shopping from the big book a deep sense of happiness came over their hearts.

"In you know, dear," said the mother of the happy brood, "I can't help feeling that God was in that box."

"Of course He was!" said Reverend Dalton reverently.

A Canned Christmas

All is not lost though the times have changed. Even the smallest households, with the most miniature of kitchenettes, may eat heart's head, grouse, or duck, and even the characteristic green turtle soup, aided by the canner. Many of these unusual specialties are delightful surprises packed in the Christmas basket of those who must celebrate the holiday far from home and friends providing the traditional dinner in quite merry fashion.—Delicieux Magazine.

EGYPTIAN TREE

THE Christmas tree, which has become an almost universal symbol, and is by most persons supposed to have originated in Germany, seems to have had something of a counterpart in Egypt at a period long before the Christian era. The palm tree is known to put forth a branch every month, and a spray of this tree, with twelve shoots on it, was used in Egypt at the time of the winter solstice, as a symbol of the year completed.

GREATEST COURAGE IS OFTEN NEEDED FOR SMALL DEEDS

DR. JENSEN

Second of Series of Talks Is Given at Antioch Grade School

TO GIVE MEDALS

That great courage is often required to meet little things in life, was the opinion expressed Monday afternoon by Dr. G. W. Jensen when, as a representative of the Antioch American Legion post, he addressed pupils of the seventh and eighth grade of the Antioch Grade school.

Dr. Jensen spoke on "Courage," the talk being the second of a series being made by Legionnaires. The first was made two weeks ago by Archie Maplethorpe, local commander. Mr. Maplethorpe's subject was "Honor." The local Legion post will, later in the school year, present scholarship medals of solid bronze to Antioch pupils, the basis of award being on Honor, Courage, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service. The next talk will be on "Scholarship."

Dr. Jensen explained that the soldiers of the World War showed courage in a high degree when they advanced across No-Man's land in the face of deadly machine gun fire. It was courage, but of a different kind, the speaker said, that Benjamin Franklin possessed when he signed the Declaration of Independence with the droll remark: "We must all hang together or most assuredly we shall all hang separately." The aviators and explorers, Lloyd and Bennett, who carried the American flag over the north pole also showed courage, the speaker said.

Explains By Story

Continuing Dr. Jensen declared: "But we do not have to look to these outstanding acts for examples of courage. Each day one may see courage of equal quality. Often little things in life require the same courage that would be needed to face a roaring lion."

The speaker then told a story of a school boy who stuttered. Whenever this boy talked, other boys and girls snickered and imitated him. He was sensitive and avoided talking as much as possible. One day, however, he determined to overcome his affliction and decided that the only way to do it was by talking as much as possible. He surprised his classmates by volunteering to give an oral composition. He stuttered and his schoolmates laughed. His face grew red and he trembled. Next day he again volunteered to recite. For months he continued to talk before the class, and in high school he competed for the debating team so that he would have more practice. At last, the other pupils stopped making fun of him for they realized how he was struggling. Gradually he gained confidence and control until every vestige of his affliction disappeared.

"In this case," Dr. Jensen said, "courage extended over a long period and with the support of public applause. Examples of this kind in persons who are ill and crippled but who smile in spite of pain, are not uncommon."

"But there is another fine type of courage—displayed by girl to stand for the right in the face of all odds. For example, one often sees a boy or girl urged by his companions to do something which is not right, and when that boy or girl has refused, he or she has been called a 'sissy' or a 'baby,' but if he or she still refused in spite of the ridicule, real courage was displayed."

Dr. Jensen concluded his address by giving five rules for courage: never excuse your own faults or mistakes, try to do things even though they look hard, if wrong admit it and try to make it right, do not be afraid to stand for the truth even though it hurts, and if at first you don't succeed, try again.

ATTEND MEETING IN BENSENVILLE LATE YESTERDAY

That more definite plans could be made regarding the Northwest conference music festival which may be held next spring in Bensenville, L. O. Bright and other representatives of the Antioch High school faculty, attended a meeting in Bensenville Wednesday afternoon. The results of the meeting have not been announced yet.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hostetter have had as their guests from Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. William Weatherax and Tifton Hostetter.

CRIMINAL CASES TO BE HEARD EARLY IN YEAR

No more criminal cases will be heard in Lake county this year, according to State's Attorney A. V. Smith, who has been informed that civil suits will be on the call in circuit court until January.

Probably the first trial to be heard in January will be that of Arthur Blanchard, proprietor of a gas filling station, who is charged with kidnapping Frank Stewart, an employee of the Waukegan waterworks.

Harry Western, who was charged with being an accomplice of Blanchard made a complete confession to Col. Smith in which he said that Blanchard thought Stewart was a salesman for a correspondence school course.

He declared, Col. Smith charged, that Blanchard forced Stewart to sign 13 receipts for the remainder of the course.

DEATH CAR DRIVER READS OF TRAGEDY, THEN SURRENDERS

Declaring that he thought he was going to be a victim of a hold-up and not realizing that he had killed a man, Kenneth E. Loteman, 25, who lives near Woodstock, surrendered to State's Attorney A. V. Smith this week, and admitted that he was driver of the automobile that struck and killed John Cusker, 55, Fox Lake, last week.

Loteman said that he did not know he had killed the man until he read an account of the accident in a Waukegan paper. Bonds of $3,000 were signed for Loteman's release, while an investigation is being made. A hearing is set for December 11.

MEETING TO DISCUSS GAS QUESTION HERE TO BE DECEMBER 10

Village Board Calls Session Of Interested Property Owners.

After a discussion of the local gas problem at a meeting of the Village board Tuesday night, it was decided to hold a meeting of property owners concerned with the problem, December 10 at 8 o'clock in the Village hall.

Members of the board Tuesday night officially appointed Richard Corrin building commissioner. Frank Valenta has been retained for the winter as night policeman. Mr. Valenta is to serve the entire village, not merely the business district.

Sewer construction work was completed yesterday in Antioch and now both the Craig and Thorn subdivisions jobs are finished. It was announced that several persons have already taken out sewer permits.

Routine business was transacted and the usual bills allowed.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brook have gone to New York. They will return late in December.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Fields were in Chicago Monday.

News Necessary

Cross Lake Man Has His Opinion on Subject and
He Expresses His Thoughts.

"I've been a subscriber of THE ANTIOCH NEWS for some time," said E. R. Cross when he walked into the NEWS office the other day.

Smiling, he added: "But my time has expired and I want my paper discontinued."

Hastily he added: "Here is why. I am living up at Cross lake now, and we already get one paper at the house, so two aren't necessary, but you can believe me, whenever I leave and go where there isn't a paper, the first thing thing I shall do is send remittance for my subscription to THE NEWS. Couldn't get along without the paper at all."

And Mr. Cross is just one of many who express themselves as being pleased with Antioch's weekly.

COMPLICATED PLOT WILL BE UNRAVELED TOMORROW NIGHT

"It Pays To Advertise" Will Be Presented By The Senior Class.

Literally, the stage is set for the Antioch High school senior play, "It Pays To Advertise" which is to be presented in the school auditorium Friday night under the direction of Miss Hedvig Rice.

The play, "a farcical fact" in three acts, has been given successfully by many amateur as well as professional groups. Those in the cast are Louise Simons, Raymond Burnette, Esther Barthel, Lloyd Murrie, Ray Berglund, Richard Folbrink, Mary Gailger, Homer La Plant, Clarence Kufalk, Martha Westlake, Eugene Sheehan, and Esther Stearns.

Charles Wertz, Rudolph Scrametz, and William Steinhilber are the stage managers. Lewis Gailger is advertising manager, and cashiers are Joe Anzinger and Arthur Datzel.

Ushers will be Bertha Schorah, chief, Frances Griffin, Esther Grulich, Elizabeth Barthel, Bernice Daugwell, and Francis Daugwell.

The plot is a complicated, humorous, and interesting one. Mary Grayson, a private secretary, is hired by a millionaire, Cyrus Martin, to force Mr. Martin's son, Rodney, to go to work. The son has not worked since his graduation from the university. According to the plan of Mr. Martin, the father, Miss Grayson was to cause Rodney to fall in love with her and indirectly persuade him to go to work. The love-affair proved not to be a make-believe one, however, Rodney is disinherited by his father. As he prepares to leave he finds an old recipe for making soap, and as his father is a millionaire "soap king," Rodney decided to start a soap factory in competition.

Ambrose Peale, an energetic young man, becomes Rodney's partner, and with Mary's help they advertise extensively. A customer enters the store, there is a mad desire on the part of the public for Rodney's soap. Mr. Martin is converted to the "It Pays To Advertise" idea, Rodney and Mary—but the story is too involved to give in detail, and besides seeing is better than hearing.

DAMAGE OF $10,000 IF CAUSED BY FIRE WHEN BARN BURNS

Residence, Granary, And Outbuildings Are Saved By Firemen.

Damage of $10,000 was done Saturday afternoon by the fire which destroyed two barns belonging to C. R. Rice, located on the Rice farm five miles north of Antioch and one mile south of Bristol.

The alarm was turned in at the Antioch department house at 1:30 o'clock. When the local firemen reached the blaze the Bristol department members were on hand, and with the combined efforts of the two forces, the residence, the granary and other outbuildings were saved. Water was pumped from two cisterns.

The barn contained farm machinery, hay, and feed. The damage is entirely covered by insurance.

The Frank Silldorf family is living on the farm.

Pure Milk Association To Organize Local Here

Action Follows Chicago Health Commissioner's Drastic Ruling.

Antioch is to have a local organization of the Pure Milk association, if plans to that end are matured at a meeting of dairymen of this community Tuesday night, December 11, at eight o'clock at the high school. Prominent milk association officers will be here to explain the situation and tell just what should be done to meet the requirements of the Chicago health commissioner's drastic ruling regarding the city's milk supply.

TO HAVE DINNER

Members of the Antioch Business Men's club will hold a meeting Monday night in the Antlers hotel. Dinner is to be served.

AGRICULTURALISTS MEET IN CHICAGO

For an interchange of ideas and experiences, and to standardize the service performed for agriculture in the several states, the Association of Commissioners, Secretaries and Departments of Agriculture of the United States held its annual meeting in Chicago, December 3 and 4. Stillman J. Standard, director of agriculture of Illinois and a member of the association's executive committee, spoke Monday on "The Administration of Regulatory Laws." This topic, given as the most important duty of state agricultural officials, was most prominent among suggestions sent in to the association's officials by the members. In this meeting the agricultural leaders of the 48 states discussed the probabilities of a national farm program and their participation in its development in their respective states.

RUMORS DECLARED FALSE BY HEADS OF DAIRY FIRM

Officers State Plant Will Not Close First of Year.

Denial of rumors that the Antioch Dairy company is to be closed after January 1, was made this morning after an interview with officers and directors of the company.

All of the persons interviewed expressed surprise that the report had started, and as one of the directors stated: "Such a report is a malicious falsehood. The concern has prospered and business has steadily increased in volume. Many new patrons are to join the ranks of the Antioch Dairy company January 1."

A new plant manager, James McKelvie, has taken charge of the business here. Mr. McKelvie has had wide experience, having been associated with one Elkhorn firm for more than 20 years.

Thieves Enter Three Cottages and Obtain Loot Worth $500

Articles valued at more than $500 were obtained by thieves who, during the last week, broke into three bluff lake cottages owned by two winter residents of Antioch, and a resident of Waukegan.

The cottages of Ben Burke and Fred Hawkins, Antioch, and of Attorney Eugene Bunyard, Waukegan, were those entered. From the Burke cottage the rugs, bedding, linen and miscellaneous articles taken are valued at $400. Although the Hawkins cottage was entered, nothing of value has been reported missing. Three rugs were stolen from Mr. Bunyard's summer home. The rugs are valued at about $100.

The robberies are believed to have occurred between Wednesday and Sunday. Entrances to the cottages were gained by breaking windows, then reaching to the inside and opening the doors.

Investigations are being conducted by members of the department of Sheriff L. A. Doolittle.

BUSINESS TAX CASE TO BE HELD FRIDAY

First of the Antioch business tax cases to be held since the request was made, a few weeks ago, for a change of venue from local courts, will be Friday morning at 10 o'clock when F. R. King, Antioch pharmacist, is to appear before Justice J. Hoyt, Waukegan. No other cases in which Antioch business men are involved, have been set for hearing.

The first case against Mr. King was dropped when he asked for a change of venue and a new case was instituted.

Willard Chinn Receives Athletic Awards at U. of I.

Willard C. Chinn, senior at the University of Illinois, last week received numerals for his baseball achievements in 1928. He was one of 13 to be thus honored. Last year Willard was awarded a silver cup for track work. He is preparing himself for athletic coach and will receive his diploma from Illinois next June.

Antioch Will Clash With Richmond Boys In Opening Battle

High School Team Has Been Holding Regular Practises.

Basketball season for the Antioch High school team will be formally opened Saturday night when Richmond comes here to play.

For the last two weeks Coach G. G. Reed has been drilling the boys of the team, and much promising material is being discovered. There seems to be a wealth of snarl material, but just what the forward situation will be, is not known. Three members of last year's team who were on the scoring end, graduated in June, and new players must be developed.

Joe Anzinger is manager and Homer LaPlant trainer. A captain has not been elected.

NOTICE IS SERVED BY M'HENRY MAN ASKING RECOUNT

Petition Will Come Up Be- fore January Assembly; Aims At Lyons.

Recount of votes cast for state representative in the eighth senatorial district at the election November 6 will be demanded by Thomas Bolger, McHenry Democratic candidate defeated by three Republicans, N. L. Jackson, Boone county; Richard Lyons, Mundelein, and Lee McDonough, Waukegan.

Notice has been served on the three winners by Mr. Bolger, but the unsuccessful candidate is striking chiefly at Mr. Lyons. According to the laws of Illinois, however, Mr. Bolger must serve notice on all the candidates as a group.

Friends of Mr. Bolger are bearing all expenses of the investigation. The recount is addressed to the general assembly, the first session of which convenes January 10. A committee will be appointed soon after that date, it is expected, so that the petition will be studied and decisions reached can be announced to the assembly by committee men.

FIVE LAKE COUNTY MEN BEGIN TERMS MONDAY MORNING

Five Lake county officers started their new terms of office Monday following their re-elections November 6.

Starting his eighth term and having served Lake county for 28 years, L. O. Brockway, recorder, is "dean of office-holders."

Monday marked the beginning of the seventh term for Coroner J. L. Taylor, Libertyville. He has been coroner since 1904.

States Attorney A. V. Smith is starting his ninth year. L. J. Wilmut became circuit clerk four ago. Charles Russell started his seventeenth year as surveyor this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hawkins, who have formerly lived on South Main street, have moved to the Harden farm near Antioch.

Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Luttermann have returned to Antioch after spending several days in Grady Center, Iowa.

COLD SAVES 'EM

Cold is good for something, anyway. W. H. Tiffany, formerly of Antioch, and who now lives in Chetek, Wisconsin, recently felt as though he should like to play a little golf. The ground was hard and golfing wasn't the easiest thing in the world, but Mr. Tiffany declared happily that the frozen lake saved many of the golf balls from finding a grave in the watery deep. Who was it said that every cloud has a silver lining?

Merchants Are Helping Extend Hospitality to Antioch Visitors

Four hundred dollars in premiums will be available in open class and $100 will be offered in the 4-11 classes at the annual Antioch-Lake Villa Poultry exhibition to be held in the Wetzel building December 13, 14, and 15.

The best individuals from the poultry yards of southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois will meet in brilliant conflict. There is a place for any of the standard bred birds and in addition a new class is being tried out this year. A production class where pullets, hens, and cockerels may be entered and judged for their merits of production is a new feature and should attract those who are breeding their flocks for meat or eggs.

Judging of the exhibits will take place Friday, December 14, with Frank Conway, Cary, as judge. Jerry Ward, Waukegan, is to judge the pigeons.

Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, 35 high class cockerels of various breeds will be sold at auction, and in the evening dressed and live poultry of all kinds will be auctioned. This will provide an unusual opportunity for the urban residents to obtain poultry for the holidays.

Entries will close Thursday, December 13 at 4 o'clock. At that time all stock must be in place. Premium lists and entry blanks may be obtained from C. L. Kutt, Antioch, secretary of the poultry association.

Many progressive merchants of Antioch are co-operating with the poultrymen in extending the hospitality of the village to the visitors. Realizing that the poultry industry is a $1,000,000 industry in this region, merchants are helping make the show and the community meet the standards of such an industry. These merchants will hold open house during the show and from then on until Christmas.

Admission to the poultry exhibit is free.

BOXING TOURNAMENT OPENS FRIDAY NIGHT AT ANTIOCH PALACE

Joe Sames Is Only Local Entrant; Other Popular Fighters.

From all parts of Lake county—Antioch, Deerfield, Waukegan, Lake Villa, Highland Park, and other points—will come more than 40 men who have entered the first amateur boxing tournament ever held in Lake county or in a community as small as Antioch. The tournament opens in the Antioch Palace Friday night at 8:45 o'clock.

Of special interest to Antioch is the announcement that Joe Sames, 16-year-old Antioch youth, is listed among the entrants. Sames is a former Chicago resident, but has lived in this community for more than six months. He is employed by the E. Tackles Fruit company.

Sames, who weighs 114 pounds, fought his first bout in several months last Friday night at the Palace. Although he lost the decision he put up a game fight. Fans believe that Joe is a real discovery, and it is up to him now to show that he is there with the goods.

Other popular fighters who will be on hand for tony bouts are Jimmy Hull, Charley Zambie, Eddie Pettie, Bob Juhndt, Joe Labus, Larry Levette, and Joe Drinka. The Great Lakes Training school will send fighters.

The drawings for the bouts have not been held, and the results will not be known until Friday.

A Waukegan Daily makes the statement that the boxing tournament and a popularity contest are being staged by the Antioch Palace and this Waukegan paper. While the Waukegan paper referred to is helping stage the popularity contest, it is in no way helping promote the tournament. As far as can be learned by this writer, no Lake county newspaper has a license for promoting amateur bouts.

When questioned this morning Promoter Dick Macek, owner of the Palace, said that the Palace alone is promoting the tournament.

BEGORRA! THAT SWATE TOWN OF ANTIOCH! WATSON, WILLIAMS, WEBB AND GRICE ARE AMONG NAMES FOUND IN BOOK

"Think back! Don't be afraid of telling your age, but—does the expression the 'swate town of Antioch' mean anything to you? Without a doubt, to many readers of THE ANTIOCH NEWS the expression will bring a flood of memories, for it hasn't been so many years ago—34 to be exact—that 'the swate town of Antioch' received much publicity.

In 1894 Preserved Wheeler published a small, paper-bound book called "Hennessey of Lake County," and the book was distributed with the complimentary of THE ANTIOCH NEWS. The book is most interesting, and there are several photographs and sketches.

"Hennessey of Lake County" was dedicated to John J. Burke, senior publisher of THE NEWS. Mr. Burke's picture forms the frontpiece, while the second picture is of A. H. Storms, junior publisher of THE NEWS.

There are several separate stories, the first telling of an Irishman named Hennessey, a former Antioch resident, who has moved to Chicago. While on the street he meets an old friend, Dave Bates, who lives in Antioch—that "swate town of Antioch," Hennessey declares with tears in his eyes. Hennessey asks about many of his friends from his old acquaintance.

Excerpts from the conversation follow:

"Old Bill Ring has been sick," Bates informs Hennessey.

"Bill Ring! Shure he us't to be where Johnny Perkins and old Ira Webb's boys be now. Well do I remember old Ring. In the old times he used to be to go clear to New York, twice a year, for his goods, him an old Rob Straug," Hennessey recalled, continuing:

"An Iry Webb! Shure an I remember that same old Iry very well. He us't to be a auctioneer in the old times an hed a party shure hed an his shoulders, Oh tell you. An do his boys be in the trade now?"

"No Longer 'Judge'"
"Yes," said Bates, "there is few more popular men in the county than Webb Bros. & Perkins. You don't know Perkins, he came eight years ago. He's a big fellow, weighing over 300 pounds, and as good natured as he is big."

At the mention by Bates later in the conversation, of Charley Haynes, Hennessey is informed that Haynes' position as squire had been taken by John Burke, Burke, it was explained much to the surprise of Hennessey, was senior publisher of THE NEWS. Levi Simons, the Irishman learns, is still "the fondest duck shot in Lake county." Tom Wilton, who "belated nuyther Gaud nor the dtevie" is "considerable of a lawyer, well-fixed financially," and owner of the opera house, Hennessey is informed.

In speaking of a newcomer to Antioch, Bates said the following of Dr. E. H. Ames:

"Dr. Ames is a native of Lake county, but he's only been in Antioch 12 years. He's the man to tell a good story, and as for jokes, he's full of 'em. He is one of the village 'dads' and I am glad to say he helped make a temperance town out of Antioch." A picture of Dr. Ames is carried in the book, as is a picture of Andrew Herman, a "Lake county boy."

"Kin Talk Anything?"

"Just the tastiest teller I ever saw" in the manner Bates described C. O. Foltz, a native of Burlington, who opened a store in Antioch in 1886 in the Wilton opera house block. Riley O'Leary, Hennessey learns, "kin give you the biggest yarns about the old Erie ditch ye ever hearn tell," and John "kin talk politics, religion or anything with the best of 'em, and everybody likes him."

Bates continued: "There's A. G. Watson, he's a young and enterprising feller, he keeps the farmers supplied with machinery and feed, and he's full of business I kin tell you, Hennessey. Then there's the Williams brothers, surely you remember them. They are old residents. They keep a fine store an' sell everything but liquor. Then there's L. B. Grice, Burt we calls him, and he keeps the Grice hotel. Like myself, he's considerable of a talker but he never misses any business chances. He's always on hand with his livery, lookin' out for guests."

The picture of Williams Brothers' store shows the present brick building only with long wooden steps clear across the front of the store. Horses are tied at the hitching post. The road is unpaved.

One picture of hunters standing by the lake has below it: "As fer lovely places to stop at, there's the Hunter's Home, an Ramaker's, an Bob Selter's."

Heading matter describing a picture of a man standing in the boat follows:

"The dachin worrakin mon can go to Grass lake for his sport, as well as the millionare. There the poor man can stand in his boat just as the day is breakin', and watch the rosy mornin' gettin' out of bed."

Still another picture of contented hunters informs one that "at Grass lake a mon kin hev the joy of firin' off his gun without bein' hit on the hid by a conatable."

The book is in the possession of THE NEWS.

Mole Fur.

The fur of the mole is best when the animal is killed in the winter season. It is also called as 'prime' fur in midsummer, although the animal's fur is somewhat shorter then. During the molting periods in the spring and fall there is deterioration in the value of the fur.

PRUNING ARGUMENT SETTLED BY MOTH

Peach Insect Will Do Work For Orchardists, Is It Learned.

Urbana, Dec. 6.—Entry of the oriental fruit moth into the southern Illinois peach producing areas has settled the controversy over the so-called "California long type" of pruning and the modified heading back system. It is pointed out by R. S. Marsh, horticulture extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. The fruit moth, and family, Milwaukee, the Leo McVicar family and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Meredith, Salem, Thanksgiving day.

George Selby, Silver Lake, was a guest of his son, Charles and family, Thanksgiving day.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sears, Union Grove, were visitors at the Selby home, Sunday.

in its injury to growing twig ends on young peach trees, produces the same lateral shoot growth that one gets by lightly cutting back or tipping of the stronger growing shoots, as is done under the modified heading back system, he explained. Hence, if peach orchardists do not practice this system of pruning the peach moth will do it for them.

"Experimental work by Dr. W. A. Roth and other investigators at the college of agriculture shows that young peach trees, when set, should be headed at 18 and 24 inches. Weak or injured trees will need to be headed lower than more vigorous ones. All lateral shoots should be cut off with the pruning shears without removing the buds at the base of the laterals. A growth at these points often will help in forming a new head.

"During the first summer no pruning should be done but in the succeeding dormant season the trees should be trimmed so that three or four properly spaced lateral shoots the left for frame work branches. In the succeeding dormant season, the second after planting, vigorous misplaced branches should be removed for the purpose of sending growth in the proper direction and limiting the number of secondary frame work branches. At this time each frame work branch can be pruned to leave one or two strong branches for the permanent secondary frame work, preferably arising 18 inches or more from the trunk. The less vigorous interior shoots can be thinned, but not all of them should be removed, because they add to the total growth of the tree and it is upon these growths that the first fruit is borne.

"In the third dormant season after planting the same general procedure should be followed as in the second. If, because of poor growth in the first season after setting, secondary frame work branches have not been selected up to this time they can be decided upon now. On the other hand, if growth has been vigorous it may be necessary to start heading back the most vigorous frame work branches to vigorous laterals taking a more horizontal direction.

For Economical Transportation

Place your order Now— The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History —a Six in the price range of the four!

Since the announcement of The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History, tens of thousands of people have already placed their orders for this sensational new car! Never before has any new Chevrolet ever won such tremendous public acceptance in so short a period of time!

The new six-cylinder valve-in-head motor is an engineering masterpiece. Not only does it develop 32% more power than any previous Chevrolet motor... not only does it offer increased speed and faster acceleration—but it provides this amazing performance with such outstanding economy that it delivers an average of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

A new heavier crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced—and designed with shorter crank throws to minimize torsional strain—results in a degree of smoothness and freedom from vibration that is truly remarkable. A new automatic lubricating system carries a continuous supply of oil to the entire rocker arm mechanism—resulting in exceptional quietness of operation.

A plentiful supply of gasoline is assured under all operating conditions by a new AC gasoline pump and filter. An automatic accelerating pump on the new carburetor gives faster acceleration and increased economy. And scores of other features—such as fabric camshaft gear... hot-spot manifold... high compression, non-detonating head... and semi-automatic spark control—contribute to every phase of performance, economy, long life and dependability.

Throughout the entire chassis is found similarly advanced design.

Four long semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—set parallel to the frame and equipped with Alemite lubrication at all the shackle joints—cushion the entire upper structure against road shocks. A full ball-bearing steering mechanism, with complete lubrication at all the points of contact, results in delightful ease of control. And newly designed 4-wheel brakes—positive in action, easy of application and noiseless in operation—provide a measure of braking control more than equal to the most unusual requirements.

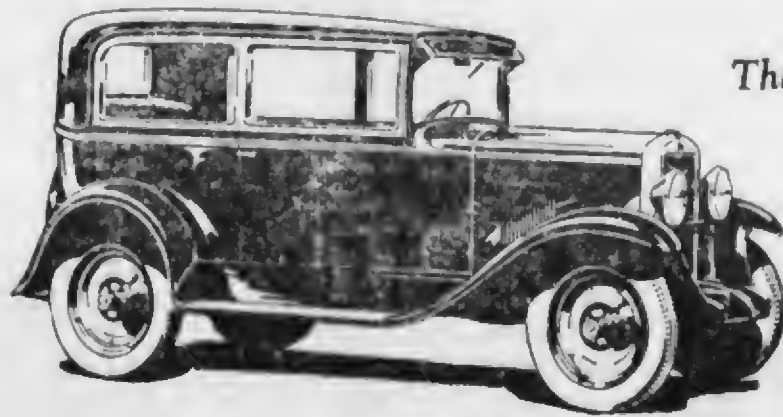

The marvelous new bodies by Fisher are longer, lower and roomier and incorporate in all closed models an adjustable driver's seat that may be moved forward and back to suit the comfort of the driver!

Come in and learn the full and significant story of this greatest of all Chevrolets!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, denounced" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 2.

The Golden Text was, "Can any hide himself in secret places that I shall not see him? saith the Lord. Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord" (Jeremiah 23:24).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God" (Eph. 6:11, 14, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God has endowed man with inalienable rights among which are self government, reason and conscience. Man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by His Maker, divine Truth and Love" (p. 106).

STATE OF ILLINOIS IS 110 YEARS OLD

Historical Society Holds Special Program In Observance.

Commemorating the one hundred and tenth anniversary of Illinois' admission to statehood, the Illinois state meeting of the Illinois State Historical society was held in the centennial building a few days ago. The chief address, "The Man of Courage and Vision—An Appreciation of George Rogers Clark," was presented by Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary and pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chicago.

Mrs. William Jackson Swenson, state regent of the Illinois society, daughters of the American Revolution, presented the 1928 gold medal, state prize for the best essay submitted on the subject "Historical Churches in Illinois," to Miss Margaret Katherine Schnepp of Tallula. The prize was awarded in a competition among Illinois school children, held under the auspices of the state historical society and the Illinois society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

What Have You?

It would seem perfectly clear that one cannot impart what he does not have. Yet we find parents expecting their children to be a great deal better than fathers and mothers. We find teachers assuming they can teach others more than they themselves know. Before we can give, we must have.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

Roman Rulers.

The name "Caesar" was the family name of the first five Roman emperors, originating in Sextus Julius Caesar, who was a praetor, 236 B. C. The family became extinct with Nero in 68 A. D., and the title "Caesar" became simply a title of dignity. Both Augustus Caesar, born September, 63 B. C., who died in August of the year 14 A. D., and Tiberius ruled during the life of Christ. Augustus was reigning at the time of the birth of Christ.

Keeps Temperature Even.

A thermos bottle is a double-walled receptacle. The air in the space between the walls is completely exhausted and the walls are silvered like a mirror so as to reflect radiation. This guards against the access of heat or cold from without.

Phrase Long in Use

Although the phrase "carry on" was popularized in the World War by the British army, its origin can be traced to a much earlier period. Originally a naval word of command meaning "continue as before," it was first applied to war by Addison in his Spectator in 1712. The first to use it in a nautical sense was a writer in Blackwood's Magazine, April, 1812.

Costs Nothing.

Wealth is not all in this old vale of tears and laughter, or anywhere else so far as we know, and it often seems to us that the people who build the grand new house in the fashionable suburb don't get nearly as much fun out of it as their humble friends who criticize it from across to foundation stone and in all its ramifications, and that without one cent of expense.—Chicago State Journal.

Poultrymen Think Aid In Finances Should Be Given

That local poultry shows should get state aid in the form of funds for premium reimbursement on the same basis as the county fairs is the contention of leaders in the poultry industry. At Quincy, last week, A. D. Smith addressed the poultry raisers of that section of Illinois, assembled for the Mississippi Valley Poultry Exposition. In his remarks on poultry progress and prospects, Smith, who serves as chief poultryman of the Illinois department of agriculture, told the poultry people that the next state legislature might see fit to appropriate funds for the support of local poultry shows. He explained how, in 1927, the friends of agriculture in the legislature, at the request of poultry breeders, passed a bill that authorized the county boards of supervisors to appropriate not more than $500 each year for local poultry show premiums. Similar efforts, he believes, may succeed in having the next General Assembly, which convenes in January, pass a measure that will provide premium reimbursement from the state.

Important Notice To Antioch Milk Producers

FALSE RUMORS are being circulated in and about Antioch, that the Antioch Dairy Co. plant it to be closed on January 1st, 1929.

We desire to state that any statement to this effect is absolutely false and of malicious intent to injure the business of the ANTIOCH DAIRY COMPANY.

The Antioch Dairy Company plant is operated solely for the benefit of the MILK PRODUCERS in the Antioch territory. It is YOUR PLANT providing a Home Plant for your milk supply, and enabling producers at all times to personally see their milk tested—a privilege and condition you do not receive in shipping your milk elsewhere.

Our Plant is modern in every respect and classed as "A1" by the Chicago Department of Health. Our Plant Superintendent is a man of many years experience in country milk plants.

The milk intake has increased steadily during the past year and many new patrons will be added on January 1.

It is to YOUR INTEREST and YOUR DUTY as a milk producer in this territory to join with your neighbors in patronizing and supporting your HOME PLANT.

The Antioch Dairy Company plant will not close down but will continue to serve its Patrons, both present and future during the coming year, 1929.

Any statements or rumors to the contrary can be considered as malicious falsehoods.

We earnestly solicit your patronage for 1929.

Signed,
Directors

MISS HEPPSIE'S Christmas turkey had disappeared and she had looked in every crook and cranny of the great old Padgett place, chiefly to reassure herself. She was indignantly sure that she knew who had taken her bird, although she had not really seen it go, for there had been hushed rumors of her neighbors' evil practices. Miss Heppsie had not listened very much. Lonely and prim, she lived in the house where her father was born. The changing world beyond her walls went by without her knowing, and the ill-reputed neighbors were strangers, except for an occasional glimpse of a horde of bedraggled children. And now she hated them.

Miss Heppsie Continued to Stare.

Miss Heppsie Padgett wondered what to do. The sun set red behind the naked trees and cast long purple shadows on the snow of Christmas eve. It was too late to get another turkey. The array of pies and cakes, even the dressing, were waiting for the morrow, and it was the first time in the history of the proud old red brick house that Christmas time had been without a turkey. The more Miss Heppsie thought of it the angrier she became. Then on the wide front porch she heard the commotion of many foot steps and, presently, the thud of a timid knocker. Few visitors came to the Padgett house, so the parlor was dark and the heavy front door was bolted. Miss Heppsie opened it a trifle and there, on her spotless porch, were a half-dozen ragged children, frightened, cold, unlovely, but bathed in the chattering light of the winter moon, and, carried on the back of one, was Miss Heppsie's Christmas turkey.

For a long, tense moment they looked at each other, the woman, the children, the turkey, then, quaveringly, but with a strange uplifted pride, the biggest of the children blurted out: "Maw sent it back." Miss Heppsie continued to stare. There was nothing encouraging in the steady gaze of her eyes but the boy went on: "Maw sent us out to swelp it but she changed her mind, I guess. She said it wouldn't bust good nollow, on Christmas, and we'd just have hominy and turnips, and apple sauce for puddin', same as always. She sent for turkey back 'cause, even if you didn't need it, really, 'twasn't hers." Suddenly the boy began to cry. "Gee it must be grand," he sobbed, "to live in a big fine house like this and have turkey for Christmas dinner." Then, as if a great joy had come to him, he raised his head and smiled through his tears. "But we ain't goin' to steal no more. We ain't, not ever, 'cause maw, she said we wasn't." The moonlight that fell on his earnest face erased the lines of hardness and left only a baby purity. Blinked, surely, almost all of them were, huddled there together, strangely timid yet strangely strong in the humbleness of their confession. Across the night a song rang out, carolers bearing His message. "For whatsoever ye do unto one of the least of these—"

Suddenly Miss Heppsie saw her Christmas turkey, laden and she in selfish solitude, presiding at the feast. No love had ever stirred her heart at Christmas. And then she saw her feast again, with a group of happy faces round it, huddled in turkey and cake, and at the foot of the table, a mother who said, "We ain't goin' to steal no more." With a soft, choked cry, she opened her arms long empty, and into their warmth she drew the tangle of huddled, hungry, children.

Across the night a song rang out, carolers bearing His message, "Glory to God in the Highest, on earth peace, good-will toward men."

The Tigers were defeated for the first time in the girls' volleyball tournament Monday when the Coyotes defeated the leaders by a score of 21-8. It was the first victory for the Coyotes. The victory was largely due to the good serving of Eleanor Ehlert who made 12 points. The outstanding players on the Tiger team were Captain Zona Newell and Wilfred DeBell.

In the second game of the afternoon the Elephants defeated the Lions, 21-2. The serving of Marjorie Van Liere and Irene Haase and the offensive play of Elva Marks was outstanding for the victors, while Mary Daly played well for the losers.

With a loud grinding of brakes the long line of cars came to a stop at the little station. Then Eleanor Blake stepped swiftly to the platform. "Won't they be surprised?" she whispered happily to herself. "And what a Christmas we're to have."

She waited long enough to see her several pieces of baggage on the way then with swift steps she tripped through a familiar street. A gay little tune was on her lips as she turned the corner, but it died hurriedly as her old home came into view. "Why—why, the house is almost dark," she thought; "something must have happened. Mother always kept so many lights going at Christmas."

Her pace increased to a run as concentration took hold of her. Then she found herself pushing the bell and knocking on the door at the same time. In her anxiety, it seemed ages before there was any response, then she heard footsteps, and in another moment, her father's voice: "Why, daughter, daughter!" the old voice was almost broken. "Oh, thank God that you have come! Mother will be so happy."

With quick steps she ran toward the little bedroom at the end of the hall

Preparing the Christmas Dinner.

Then she learned the reason for the absence of light and cheer in the house. Her mother was ill.

It was good to see the joy that lit up her face as Eleanor bent over her bed and kissed her lovingly.

It was not long before Eleanor learned that the real cause of her mother's illness was the longing to see her and the fact that she had failed to write during the past weeks. Then Eleanor told them the secret that she had been keeping until this happy moment—the thing that had kept her from writing to them. She had been promoted to one of the most responsible positions in the advertising office where she was employed both of the old people gasped when she told them of the big advance in salary. But their joy was multiplied when Eleanor assured them that it would mean a little car for her and a visit home every weekend. "And mother," she whispered, "you can be sure that nothing will keep me from writing you often, but—but I wanted to tell you in person and I was afraid if I wrote that I would be tempted to read you in my letter. And I did so want to come and tell you like this."

It has been demonstrated many times through the years that happiness is one of the best healers known, but never so forcibly before as it was that evening. For inside of an hour the happy trio were downstairs decked out in a big Christmas tree. Mother had insisted that she was well enough to go down and help. "Why, I feel like I could cook a big turkey dinner tomorrow," she said happily. "My but the house looks cheerful now since you put up all those decorations, Eleanor. I—didn't have the heart to bring them down from the attic this year. I never thought you were coming."

Next day mother was not allowed to cook the big turkey and the other good things that go to make up a real Christmas dinner. And mother and father boasted to the guests whom they had invited in to share the feast with them that a business woman can be a good cook, too.

And later on mother admitted that never, even in her best days, had she done such a good job of decorating and lighting the little home as Eleanor had accomplished.

Incense Ingredients.
Incense is a mixture of gums, spices, etc. In Europe frankincense is commonly employed as incense. In America the modern ingredients are usually benzoin, gum albumin and styrax and sometimes balsam and powdered bark of cascarilla. This mixture is allowed to fall on hot charcoal in the censer and burns promptly.

Robin Leads Sparrow.
It has been estimated that the familiar robin is the most numerous bird of the United States, followed closely by the imported English sparrow.

Color of Glass.
The bureau of standards says that the purple color in glass is supposed to be due to a change of condition in the manganese content of the glass which is a coloring oxide under certain conditions. This is supposed to be caused by certain rays of light which produce a difference in the degree of oxidation of the manganese present.

Effects of Gulf Stream.
Generally, the Gulf stream does not affect the eastern shore of Maryland because the prevailing winds there are off shore and not on shore. The custom, however, and for short periods, the wind is on shore. At these times, especially during winter the temperature of the air obviously is a little warmer, owing to the Gulf stream, than it would otherwise be.

"I'M A MISERABLE WRITER—"

Good penmanship is to be admired, but how many persons there are who humbly confess: "I am a miserable writer, but I can't help myself."

But—one can help one's self if one will try—really try, not merely try to write well once or twice and then give up in disgust. It is said by authorities that any person, no matter how poor a penman, can learn to write well in three months if correct instructions are followed and if the student gives his best efforts.

In many schools penmanship is neglected. A teacher at a meeting of the "Institute" this autumn was heard to say: "haven't time to fool with writing. There are other things more important. If a child is a poor writer, he'll always be a poor writer." It is really pathetic when a teacher takes such an attitude, for if a child is a poor penman, as he grows older his writing is poorer than ever.

In the Antioch grade schools penmanship is stressed. A display arranged by W. C. Petty, principal, shows what improvement can be made by devoting a comparatively short part of each school year to writing. A specimen of each pupil's hand writing was taken a year ago, again in the spring, and again this fall. The improvement in every case is almost incredible. But the specimens are before one's eyes.

THE SOUTHERN TRIP

It is reassuring to note the unanimity of approval in the American press, regardless of politics, of President Hoover's visit to the countries of Latin-America on a good will tour before his inauguration. To that general approval we respectfully add our portion.

Relations between the United States and Latin-America have been steadily improving, during the last few years, despite the efforts of European interests and American disturbers to make the situation otherwise. The proof of this is not to be found in mere words, but in the fact that our trade with Latin-America is steadily increasing. Here is the real measure of international feeling. Nations which are gradually becoming better customers to each other are bound to become better friends. The business man always has a friendlier feeling for his own customers than those of his competitor. That is only human nature.

Now the principal difficulty between Uncle Sam and the nations to the south has been a lack of mutual understanding. Where there has been misunderstanding of motives there has been friction. And this misunderstanding has been fostered purposely by our European trade rivals, and more or less unconsciously by many so-called "liberals" in our own country. European news interests control practically all the foreign news agencies operating in South America and they have made good use of the fact to criticize either openly or covertly the foreign policies of the United States. Hence the term "American imperialism" which seemed to arise so suddenly and mischievously a few months ago. And it is equally true that we do not know as much about the ideals of our Latin neighbors as we should know.

It follows obviously that the way to clear up misunderstanding between two parties is to get them better acquainted. President-elect Hoover doubtless had this in mind when he decided on a trip to several of the Latin-American republics before March 4. Certainly Mr. Hoover will be an admirable embassy of good will.

In the first place he will carry weight as the president-elect of the United States. In the second place he has a keen grasp on international problems and especially those affecting our relations with Latin-America.

The New York Times has summed up the proposed trip of Mr. Hoover admirably by stating:

"It will be within the power of Mr. Hoover to sweep away much of the lingering misunderstanding. He is doubly equipped for such an undertaking. Through the fine work of the Department of commerce he has acquired a comprehensive grasp of the great possibilities of developing trade between South America and the United States. Upon its growing importance he has dwelt again and again in his annual reports. But it is certain that he would not make his trip merely in the guise of a glorified commercial agent. He will go as president-elect of the United States. His voyage and presence will be a splendid gesture of friendship. Nothing so noteworthy in its bearing upon this particular international question has occurred since Mr. Root, when Secretary of State, made his tour of South America. In all its leading capitals he received a warm welcome, both official and popular, and his measured words of friendship made a deep impression at the time upon South America sentiment. Mr. Hoover should be able to do even more to reassure and win over the governments and the public with which he comes in contact. His trip was happily conceived, and bids fair to have the happiest result."

THE COST TO BELONG

When a person is heard to moan: "You can't get anything for nothing these days," one can't do anything but agree. However, one doesn't have to moan about it, for it isn't such a sad matter. Isn't it better to pay for something that is worth while than to get free a thing which is of no particular use or advantage?

Every organization is a cost—to the community, to the individual. It costs to belong to the church. The Red Cross must have funds. Y. M. C. A.'s and Salvation Army groups cannot exist without money. Likewise, Girl Scout and Boy Scout organizations must be given financial support.

There is no more worth while organization for the American youth than that of the Boy Scouts. He becomes acquainted with the outdoor life—becomes familiar with the trees, the heavens, the flowers and shrubs, the rocks, the soil. He learns to become a pathfinder, to lay trails, to trace trails. He learns to live in the open. He learns to cook. He learns to swim, to paddle a canoe, to row a boat. He learns the value of good sportsmanship—he learns "to play the game."

There are two active troops in Antioch. Antioch township's quota for the Lake county budget is $100. A drive for this money is to be started soon. This is only a tax of 15 cents for each person. The community needs the Boy Scouts and the Boy Scouts need the support of the community. Shall either fail?

Prof. LeRoy Bowman of Columbia University, according to the New York Times, calls the United States the most bigoted nation in the world. This doesn't speak very well for the influence of our college professors on the thought of the nation.

The Austrian republic has just celebrated its tenth birthday. And even at this tender age it is talking about getting married—to the German Reich.

Many a fellow who thinks he feels like a two-year-old is merely trying to act like one.

In the old days when shoes were $3 a pair more people had to go barefoot than in these days when they average $10 a pair.

HIGH PRICED METHODS AREN'T ALWAYS BEST, TEST RESULTS SHOW

Expensive Processes Do Not Improve Feeds Specialists Say.

Urbana, Dec. 6.—Fermenting, or "converting," feeds like hay, corn stover and straw by different methods now being advertised to Illinois farmers not only is an expensive process but also apparently does not improve their feeding value, according to dairy cattle feeding authorities at the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Because of the claims made for it, the idea has caught the attention of Illinois feeders of dairy cattle and other classes of live stock.

Briefly, the method consists of moistening the roughage with warm water to which a "converter" has been added and allowing the mass to ferment for a period of 48 to 72 hours before feeding. Roughage in whole form may be used, but it is usually cut or coarsely ground to facilitate feeding.

In discussing the merits of the processing idea, the authorities cite the published results of dairy cattle feeding experiments made by the Canadian Department of Agriculture. One of the fermentation processes of preparing feed now being advertised in Illinois was compared with an ordinary ration containing corn silage.

No better results were obtained from the processed feed than from the corn silage. Furthermore, cows fed dry, unprocessed roughage gave as much milk and butterfat as those fed roughage of the same character but treated by the "converter" process. The dry roughage was equally palatable. In each case, the processed feed was decidedly more expensive.

Investigations showed that the "converter" consisted of common salt, 73 to 75 per cent; slaked lime, 21 to 23 per cent, and vegetable matter, 2 to 5 per cent. The manufacturers recommend the use of 10 pounds of "converter" for each 800 pounds of dry roughage. The investigators found that fully as good results in fermenting feed were obtained by the

This fire department of Antioch's quite the thing, eh? How did you all like the new siren when the call to Belmont was answered Saturday afternoon. Blood curdling, you say? Seriously, though, the firemen are always on the lookout for improvements, and this new arrangement saves batteries, and thus when lights are needed when fighting fires use of warm water, with or without the addition of salt, as when the "converter" was used. Fermentation resulted in a loss of dry matter of the feed, similar to that which occurs in the silo. It was found further that the additional labor needed in processing the feed was an objectionable feature.

at night, but—figure it out for yourself.

Did you notice some men doing repair work Monday—men who were using ladders? Did you find that the ladder was in your way, and did you walk around it? Or were you brave enough to go under the ladder? Well, of 15 persons who went by in about 15 minutes, Old Eagle Eye saw only one who walked under the ladder. Did all of these persons go out of their way accidentally? Were they superstitious—just a tiny bit? Perhaps if you walked around the ladder, you won't admit that you are superstitious, but there is a tiny lurking fear which most of us inherit from our forefathers. Never-the-less, several important business men were among those who walked around the ladder, men such as—but don't be alarmed! No names are to be mentioned!

That Familiar Refrain! But Really It's Important To Shop Early And Then Mail Early

MAIL EARLY.

The slogan to shop early and mail early have become familiar refrains during the Christmas season. Some live up to the slogan, some think they will but don't, while still a third group think the slogan was adopted "just for fun" and so such slogans don't mean anything. Just wait until a person in this third group attempts to select a gift December 24, mail it and have it reach its destination (even though the destination is only Waukegan) by Christmas day.

There is one question thousands of persons throughout the country (yes! millions) are asking now and will continue to ask until Christmas night, and here is the answer to the question:

THERE WILL BE NO MAIL DELIVERY ON CHRISTMAS DAY.

The postoffice department of the United States has given several suggestions and helps for Christmas mailing. A few of these follow:

Wrapping and Packing

All parcels must be securely wrapped. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Special Packing

Umbrellas, canes, golf sticks, should be reinforced their full length by strong strips of wood tightly wrapped and tied or otherwise sufficiently wrapped to withstand transportation.

Hats: Pack in strong corrugated or fiber boxes. Ordinary pasteboard hat boxes must be crated. Ladies' hats and stiff hats easily damaged should be marked "FRAGILE."

Shoes: Pack in strong boxes, preferably corrugated cardboard. Wrap with strong paper securely tied with heavy twine.

Cut flowers: Place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin, or heavy corrugated cardboard. Wrap with tissue to retain moisture.

Candies: Inclose in strong outside boxes or containers.

Drawings, paintings, unmounted maps, etc.: Pack or wrap in strong material to avoid damage. When not flat, roll around a wooden core and then wrap and tie carefully or place in strong pasteboard tube.

Sharp pointed or sharpened instruments or tools must have points and edges fully guarded to prevent injury to clerks in handling or to prevent damage to other mail. Crates suitably or thoroughly wrap so that they can not cut through the wrapping.

Fragile Objects

Articles easily broken or crushed must be crated or securely wrapped. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, or like material, in, around, and between the articles and the outside container.

Glassware, fragile toys, crockery, must be packed so as to prevent the escape of particles of pieces if broken in transit.

Cigars: Ordinary boxes of cigars wrapped in paper only will not be accepted. Pack in a manner to prevent damage by shock or jar. Wrap in corrugated pasteboard or similar material.

All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "FRAGILE."

Perishable Matter

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "PERISHABLE." Use special delivery stamps to expedite delivery.

Addresses

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, postoffice box or rural-route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left hand corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

Early Mailing

During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of Christmas presents, cards and letters by Christmas Day the public should SHOP AND MAIL EARLY. Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings, and letters to relatives, friends, and loved ones at least a week or 10 days before Christmas, according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas Day, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend Christmas Day with their families.

Christmas Cards

Patrons sending a quantity of Christmas cards, say 10 or more, should prepare and mail them two or three weeks in advance, as millions are mailed and they can not possibly be handled and delivered if mailed only two or three or four days before Christmas. To avoid this, patrons may mail their cards two or three weeks before Christmas, if delivered to the postoffice or postal station in person, or tied together in a bundle, labeled to show that they are Christmas cards, and deposited in a street

COMING HERE

DE JEN COMPANY

Interesting observations about the art of crystal gazing have been made by De Jen of the De Jen company which is to present "Counterfeit Miracles" under the auspices of Antioch High school in the school auditorium December 17.

The mystery show is made up of a hundred mysteries and secrets gathered from all parts of the world. Mr. De Jen is a leader in the new school of mystery. He is assisted at various times throughout the evening by Miss Lucile Tustin, "the girl with a million songs."

Nelson, Dan Williamson, Elsie Swanson, and Elsie Fowles; violin duet, Taken of Hoffman, Carl Nader and Delbert Sherwood with Catherine Boehm, at the piano; A Thanksgiving Fable, Jack Rhoades, and piano solo, Elsie Philipp.

Don't Neglect A Child's Cough

A child's coughing alarms one, especially if at night. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a thoroughly dependable family medicine that contains no opiates, and no ingredient that a careful mother would hesitate to give her child. Mrs. J. S. Pison, Cleveland, Ohio, says: "After trying many cough medicines for our children, in time we dropped them all in favor of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." On sale at King's Drug store.

RATE OF MORTALITY FROM TUBERCULOSIS EXPECTED TO BE LOW

Sangamon County Is Center Of Area Of Most Deaths.

With 1928 almost certain to yield the state's lowest mortality rate from tuberculosis, Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, announced a few days ago that study now nearly completed by his department indicates the need for vigorously renewed campaigns against this disease which he characterized as a health problem that is still far from being completely solved in Illinois. The study, which is meant to be the basis of future programs and policies of combating tuberculosis, shows that Sangamon county is the center of a high mortality area that includes Morgan and Logan counties.

Another region with a particularly high mortality rate from tuberculosis includes half a dozen counties that fringe the extreme southern end of the state. To the north Cook county is the center of the territory with the most unfavorable rate but that rate is considerably lower than the prevailing rate in either of the downstate regions of excessive mortality. These three high mortality areas, fortunately limited in extent, have suffered constantly from year to year the heaviest losses in the state from the great white plague.

History of the Dollar.

The dollar was a silver coin at one time current in many European countries, and adopted elsewhere under varying forms of the name. The first use of the word in England was applied to the silver coin, the thaler which was current in Germany at various values from the sixteenth century onward.

Concrete Flower Box Is Beautiful and Durable

At some time or other, nearly every gardener and home owner has occasion to use concrete in making a flower box, a bird bath, or some other of the numerous improvements required around the modern home.

Despite the apparent simplicity with which concrete is mixed and placed in forms, everyone who uses this material should have some knowledge of its application. Rule of thumb methods make good concrete only by accident.

Concrete improvements around the home, many of which can be made in the winter time, are explained in a well illustrated booklet that may be had without cost by addressing the Portland Cement Association, 33 West Grand avenue, Chicago.

Kipling's Career.

Rudyard Kipling composed his first juvenile work at the age of thirteen. At twenty-six he was acclaimed a genius by the public and the writer of more best sellers than any other author of the time.

Cucumber Long Popular.

The cucumber is one of the oldest of garden vegetables. It is said to have been in cultivation between three and four thousand years. It originated in the Far East.

Christmas Discount by Edith Minner

IVE hundred children, with out a toy, have volunteered to give up Christmas this year. Harriette Dunham laughed. She would smother that resolution. Twenty years he fore Harriette had parted from her lover because she devoted more time to children's Christmas trees than to him. A jealous boy, Wilbur Adams. Her husband caused her bitter sorrow and resulted in her moving far away from her former home. Yet she had never ceased Christmas charities, only, as the common ending to love stories—"Married and lived happily ever after"—proved not to be hers, the objects of her care had grown old in company with her.

Today she was enroute to the city her one regret a scanty purse. Her first call was at the Red Cross. "We've fed and blank fed," said the secretary; "toys are out of our line. Go and see the Wanda shop manager. 'I'll never dare!'"

But he rallied her on math she was forced to obey his suggestion.

The Wanda was the smartest shop in town. Once she saw the counters of magnificent toys and beautiful books she got frightened and was about to slip away to the 5-and-10, where she would feel less conscious of her thin purse. When a courteous clerk insisted on serving her, and he fore she thought Harriette had asked for the manager. She expected nothing less than to be turned down perhaps politely anyhow certainly. However, she was escorted to a mezzanine, where an attendant took her name to a man behind a screen. A moment's silence, then the clerk appeared saying "The manager is too busy to see any one, but if you state your message he can hear you."

In an agony of nervousness Harriette produced the sad message, told of her trifling fund, "and could be, in consideration of the cause, let her make a few purchases of picture books and toys, and help it to go further by making prices wholesale." While she spoke she was conscious of making a silly appearance with such small trade in a great establishment and was hardly surprised at being stopped by a roar.

"Wholesale prices? Never give anything of the sort!"

Tears sprang to Harriette's eyes; not from disappointment, but because of his brutality. Miss Dunham was sometimes snubbed, but no one had ever roared at her before. Apologizing, she trembling turned to go, but was halted by another roar.

"Here—tell Miss Dunham not to be in such a hurry. Take her to the toys, and have her select what she wants. Every dollar she spends I'll match with ten dollars."

A door slammed, and silence ensued. In the toy department Miss Dunham felt like a little girl given her every wish by a fairy. Added by the manager's liberality the box was a wonder. And, as Harriette floated ecstatically to the door behind her, the manager was there—still growling!

But his words, "Harriette, look at me," caused her to raise her modest eyes, and understand why he had needed time for reflection before meeting her. He was none other than her old lover—Wilbur Adams. Twenty years—she was still Miss Dunham—he was still a bachelor. A few cards proved that her future best charity would be decking his Christmas trees. And Harriette's romance thus ended the correct way—"So they were married and lived happily ever after."

MODEL FARM VISITED BY THOSE ATTENDING NATIONAL CONGRESS

Delegates To 4-H Club Meeting Entertained Near Mundelein.

Six hundred and fifty boys and girls, members of the Seventh National Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club congress, a selected representation from among members of the 4-H clubs in 43 states and Canada, were guests at the Public Service company model farm near Mundelein, this week. The visits to the model farm were part of a week's active program for the boys and girls who participated in exhibits, judging contests, and demonstrations at the International Live Stock show, in addition to visiting centers of art, industry, and education.

The 4-H club representatives were particularly interested in what they saw at the model farm, because 4-H clubs are organized to foster increase of knowledge of live stock and farm problems among rural youth throughout the country. At the model farm they saw demonstrations of every practical device that can be operated with electrical and gas energy to replace hand labor.

Antioch's independent basketball team opened the season with a 22-20 victory over the Silverlake team Saturday night at the local gymnasium.

The half ended with Antioch at the long end of a 16-11 score, but late in the second period the Silverlake men played fast and furious, and for a time it seemed as though they might come out on top. Oliver Hughes played an exceptionally good game of ball, but Nelson and McKavitt also did some nice work. There were no outstanding stars, however, and the team work of the entire group was commendable.

In a practice game Sunday, the Wilmet Pirates over-whipped the local five 47-11.

The next scheduled game is with Lake Villa December 11, the game to be played on the Antioch floor. However, a contest may be staged here with Richmond Saturday night, although no definite arrangements have been made.

Blasts Beetle's Mistake.

The blister beetle will not eat the usual insecticides which might be used on the soy beans that it infests, and so the scheme of tickling the bottom of its feet to kill it has been devised. This tickling is done by dusting the plants with sodium disulfide, which irritates the feet and as a result it makes its feet through its mouth, thus getting the poison into its system.

"Robot."

"Robot," meaning a mechanical device which does the work of men, is correctly pronounced "rob-ut," with the accent on the first syllable. This is the pronunciation adopted by the New York Theater Guild, which produced the play, "R. U. R.," in which the word was coined by Karel Capek, a Czech playwright.—Pittsburgh Courier.

Sleeping in Noise.

Children should not be trained to sleep to absolute quiet. Accustom them to go to sleep during the ordinary noises of the house. An inadvertent noise would thus not wake them, and in later years noises would not trouble them.

Levette and Garlow Stage Best Fight at Antioch Palace

Although there was no bout which might be termed a "whopping" whizz at the Antioch Palace Friday night, every one of the eight fights was good—above the average. In fact, Rosa for the best bout, however, this week go to Larry Levette and Angelo Garlow.

Levette, who is a Waukegan product, and Garlow, who hails from Kenosha, staged the windup battle. This was a return match, and Garlow was out to get revenge for his former defeat by Levette, but Friday night Levette was too much for his Kenosha opponent. Only the three rounds were necessary for the judges, Mac McMullin and Harry Legett, to decide who was who and why.

Joe Sames, Antioch, now fighter, couldn't make much headway with Eddie Peddle, Lake Forest, but Sames fought as though he had hopes and his pluck was great. All he needs is more practice, and who knows, perhaps he'll be up and among ten before long.

Murphy Again!

Jimmy Murphy, that Irish fighter from "the city" was in the ring again. This time his opponent was Jerry Miller, Kenosha. The bout was a sort of a give and take affair, but Murphy's hard punching did the work and the decision was Murphy's.

Disagreement at the end of the third round, made Howard Kraft, Graylake, and Harold Floyd, Racine, Wisconsin, play around for an extra session. This was a return match, and Kraft was as eager and as swift as ever, but he didn't convince the judges that he was better than Floyd, so the latter took the banquet.

There's A Knockout

Bud Labus, North Chicago, didn't get to fight his three rounds, for Eddie Garlow, Kenosha, knocked him out early in the second round. Labus held his own in the first round, and the knock out was somewhat of a surprise.

Charley Zahmale is popular with the fans and he did some pretty boxing the other night when he met Kenosha's Jimmie Blencardie. The battle was fierce and fast and a fourth round was necessary. Zahmale lost.

There is no denial of the fact that Jim Simmons of Lake Forest won from Jim Simmons, Kenosha, for it was a knock out pure and simple in the second round.

Tomorrow night opens the Lake county tournament.

Wentworth Is Building Lunch Room.

Construction of a structure of wood and steel, nine by 20 feet, is underway on the lot owned by the Thayer estate and situated across from the postoffice. Clyde Wentworth, local painter and decorator, will be owner of the new building. Mr. Wentworth expects to have a counter and dairy lunch room in operation before Christmas.

The lot was formerly occupied by John Pacini and now by Hay's Sinclair filling station and Pete's Coney Island Sandwich shop. The sandwich stand has been moved a short distance to the east so that the Wentworth building could be nearer the sidewalk line.

To Bath.

The expression "Go to Bath!" arose from an omission in an act of Parliament. It authorized grants to send sick persons to Bath for the waters but made no provision for their return. The result was that many had to remain there. So "Go to Bath!" is an uncomplimentary invitation to go away and stay away.—London Times.

THREE NATIONS PAY TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN

Three nations—Denmark, Norway and Sweden—through their diplomatic representatives paid tribute to Abraham Lincoln a few days ago placing a wreath on his tomb in Springfield.

The occasion for the coming to Springfield of the representatives of Denmark, Norway and Sweden was the birthday party and banquet held recently by the Scandinavian Fellowship Society of Springfield.

Vice Consul Erik Fisher of the Royal Danish consul; Olaf Bernis, Norwegian consul and Carl Otto David von Dorell, Swedish consul, all of Chicago, were the visiting Scandinavian representatives.
